Dear Brandon,

Greetings, this is John Price. I am a physics professor at CU Boulder and your neighbor in Longmont (my home is at 146 Baylor Way). I met you briefly at a political function about a year ago, and I think you have also met my wife Liz Marr, who is co-owner of Marr Barr Communications in Longmont.

My purpose is to send you the attached document. It describes an effort to create a visiting professor position at CU Boulder with an overtly political purpose. The document has Dean Gleeson's name on it, but I suppose that it really comes from Hank Brown, and that it is being circulated among wealthy conservatives who are unhappy with independent scholarship. As far as I can see it has not been made public. I don't know what to do with it but it occurred to me that you might want to see it. Perhaps I should send it to the press or to one of the Democratic regents?

Regards,
John Price

John,

Thanks for sharing this with me. I have circulated it among some of my colleagues in the Senate and there is a general feeling that this doesn't belong at CU. It appears that the University received $9M in order to create this program - I'm sure that was the original motivation for doing this. I am trying to set up a meeting with David Skaggs, head of CCE, to discuss this with him.

Again, thanks for bringing this to my attention.

Brandon
